

Definition: Antiderivative

The antiderivative of a function f is a differentiable function F whose derivative is equal to the original function f , that is

$$F' = f$$